Educational Inequity, from a global perspective, one of the biggest challenges facing women is educational inequality. Despite the many gains of modern feminist movements many still believe that women are less worthy of the same educational opportunities afforded to men.

33,000 girls become child brides every day. Globally, 12 million girls each year get married before the age of 18, roughly 33,000 every day, or one every two seconds. There are some 650 million women alive today who were child brides. The reasons behind it vary between communities, but it's often because girls are not valued as highly as boys and marrying them off at a young age transfers the 'economic burden' to another family.

The International Every Girl Wins Day will be celebrated around the world in several countries through talks, lectures, calling or sending letters of encouragement to the females in our lives. There will be special events occurring both here in the USA as well as other countries.

Dr. Christine Kozachuk states, “I believe that the International Every Girl Wins Day will not only create a global awareness of the challenges facing girls, but will inspire girls to fulfill their destinies”.

The Every Girl Wins Institute Mission is to inspire and educate the world to accept all women as an equal and to help women create the life they deserve through support, education and guidance.

The Every Girl Wins Institute provides life skill programs for women around the world. Their experts help them rewrite the definition of their lives through our customized winning life skill programs.

The Every Girl Wins Institute was created based on the life skills and observations of women of the world from the founder. What she has experienced is the beliefs of women are holding them back from creating the life they deserve. Over and over again, she would hear women talk about not being confident enough or worthy enough because of certain circumstances that have happened in their lives.

The founder herself had also experienced the same things in her own life from childhood poverty, being a child bride with three children by the time she was eighteen. Having been abused physically, mentally, emotionally, and sexually, she understands suffering and feeling unworthy. She never let that stop her from winning and creating the life she deserved.

As a women’s life skills expert she is here to show all women of the world, they also can succeed and overcome any self-doubting obstacle in their way. Through the founder's life experiences she has created a winning program to give all women a voice to create the life they deserve just as she has done in her own life.
