"This is a golden opportunity for anyone to own part of a professional sports team," said American Giants' Co-founder Laurence Kaiser.

"The American Giants plan to become the perfect bridge to crossover sports and music. We intend to combine the global interest in basketball with the growing desire for real-world entertainment, interaction and engagement in an increasingly digital world," explained Kaiser, a sports and lifestyle management owner and executive for over 30 years.

American Giants' basketball looks to bring the allure of "the big man" on the hardwood to a whole new level, creating a whole new game.

"We believe there is no better time than now to launch this innovative, entertainment-driven, ambassador brand which aims to connect fans to a proven, in-person, live experience," stated Kaiser. "Interest in the game of basketball has been on the rise over the last few years, even recently during the Olympics," said Kaiser.

"Our group is testing the waters to evaluate investor interest in an offering under Regulation CF Crowdfunding through Wefunder, a very experienced company in that industry," stated Kaiser. "No money or other consideration is being solicited."

Sports fans have shown the willingness to support ownership of professional sports teams...just like the Green Bay Packers. "All regulations are being followed through Wefunder's platform," said Kaiser. "We are looking to gauge the interest of the worldwide population, and this involves no obligation or commitment of any kind."

The American Giants look to play serious basketball games with teams around the world.
