Free and Equal uses a cumulative debate format, curated and moderated by Christina Tobin, designed to ensure a fair and comprehensive discussion on a wide range of issues, allowing each candidate to effectively communicate their stance to the public.

The debate will be held at Chelsea Television Studios and produced by Executive Producer, Kevin Sanford and award-winning Creative Director/Producer, Andrew Arnold.

The event kicks off the Free & Equal Elections Foundation debate series. The series is committed to providing an open and accessible platform for all voices in the democratic process, reflecting the diversity and dynamism of American political discourse.

"Candidates came to us because they felt censored," Tobin said. "This debate is a testament to free speech and the public's right to information."

The upcoming debate is expected to draw significant attention from voters, media, and political analysts alike, offering a fresh perspective on the Democratic candidates and their policies.

The event promises to be a cornerstone in the lead-up to the elections, providing an invaluable opportunity for candidates to connect with voters and for voters to make informed decisions.
