Achieving the dream of becoming a pilot was not only possible but, with enough determination, inevitable, even for someone like myself with zero flight experience.”

veteran*

With a stellar 100% career placement rate since 2018 and over 100 veterans successfully transitioned, Flex Air's SkillBridge program is not just growing; it's setting the gold standard for military to civilian transitions in aviation. The program offers a unique blend of flexibility, support, and comprehensive training, accessible to all ranks and backgrounds without the need for prior flight experience or a college degree.

Flex Air CEO Paul Wynns, a retired Naval Aviator, offers invaluable guidance to those looking to navigate their post-military path. His experience and understanding of the challenges faced by transitioning veterans make him an unmatched resource in the field. Ian Buckner, U.S. Navy veteran, summarizes his experience with Flex Air: "Paul Wynns clearly and thoroughly laid out how achieving the dream of becoming a pilot was not only possible but, with enough determination, inevitable, even for someone like myself with zero flight experience. He spoke truth in that it would not be easy, but their instructors were the best in the business at getting people there."

This accolade underscores Flex Air's dedication to empowering veterans through education, mentorship, and career support. The school's programs, including SkillBridge, are designed to leverage military skills into successful civilian aviation careers, ensuring every veteran has the opportunity to fly high after service.
