In celebration of Paul McCartney’s birthday on June 18, ANALOGr will be auctioning the original lyrics to “Birthday.” On September 18, 1968, Paul McCartney hand wrote a detailed document containing the complete lyrics, structural outline, and chord diagrams for a new Beatles song, specifically designed to aid John Lennon or George Harrison with the guitar parts during rehearsals for the White Album. This meticulously crafted guide highlights McCartney's role in the band's creative process, and offers a rare glimpse into the collaborative efforts that defined The Beatles' legendary sound.

The auction, which lasts through July 2024, also celebrates Global Beatles Day on June 25, 2024, Ringo Starr’s birthday on July 7, the 60th anniversaries of the releases of the film "A Hard Day’s Night" (July 9, 1964) and the album "A Hard Day’s Night" (July 10, 1964), the 50th anniversary of the release of John Lennon's pivotal and intensely personal album "Mind Games" (July 12, 1973), and the August anniversaries of "Revolver" and "HELP!"

John Lennon's Remington Statue - This bronze statue, a reproduction of Frederic Remington's "The Rattlesnake," was owned by John Lennon and gifted to music promoter Pete Bennett in the 1970s. Bennett, who worked with The Beatles, The Rolling Stones, Elvis Presley, and others, promoted iconic albums and singles like "Hey Jude." This statue represents a unique intersection of art and music history. Estimated $8,000-12,000.

George Harrison's "Brainwashed" Ensemble - This collection includes a poster signed by Ringo Starr, Billy Preston, Pattie Boyd, and Jim Keltner, a limited edition box set with extras, and a sealed CD, commemorating Harrison's final studio album. Estimated $1,500-2,000.

Ringo Starr Signed CBS Records Employee Jacket - A beige lab coat-style jacket signed by Ringo Starr, with a CBS patch, size 38, and a document of authenticity. Estimated $1,500-2,000.

1960 Original Star Club Signed Receipts - These receipts from The Beatles' early performances at the Star Club in Germany are in excellent condition, capturing a pivotal moment in their rise to fame. Estimated $150-200.

The Beatles 1964 Pepsi Vending Machine Transistor Radio - Presented to The Beatles during their first U.S. trip, this radio, resembling a vending machine, comes with a leather carrying case and original box. Despite a missing earphone, it is in very good condition. Estimated $250-300.

Beatles Bass Hofner Icon Series #3 - A reproduction of Paul McCartney's iconic Hofner bass, featuring authentic details inspired by the original. Estimated $500-600.
