Definition:

Natural blackberry flavor extract refers to a concentrated liquid or powder derived from natural sources, primarily blackberries or other natural substances that mimic the taste and aroma of blackberries. It is used as an additive in food and beverage products to impart the characteristic flavor profile of fresh blackberries without using artificial or synthetic ingredients. The extraction process typically involves capturing and concentrating the natural flavor compounds present in blackberries through methods such as cold pressing, steam distillation, or solvent extraction. This extract is valued for its ability to enhance the taste of various products while maintaining a natural and authentic flavor profile, appealing to consumers who prefer products made with natural ingredients.
