During the interview, Elton spoke about his upbringing and his early love of being photographed by a family friend which Elton saw as being a childhood recognition of his desire to become a model.

Edi Manushi, also spoke with Elton about his success both in business with Elton's Headhunting business and his international modelling career. In responding to the questions, Elton identified and successfully implemented his Father's advice that, "to have your freedom, you need to be financially successful".

In the latter part of the interview, Elton spoke about modelling, identifying that it is part acting and part artistry and that to be a successful model is as much about having presence on the fashion runway as it is about physical beauty – of which Elton clearly demonstrates both in equal measure.

The exclusive at the end of the interview was when asked about future plans by Edi Manushi that Elton unveiled his passion project – to see Tirana, Albania's capital have an international fashion week as well produced and as vibrant as that of New York or Paris – Watch this space, or Shikoni këtë hapësirë as they say in Albania.
