

Santa Clarita Native Opens New Wound Care and Hyperbaric Center in Home Town of Santa Clarita

Dr. Ian R. Cook, Santa Clarita native, opens a state-of-the-art Wound Care and Hyperbaric Center located in the heart of Santa Clarita.

SANTA CLARITA, CA, UNITED STATES, August 13, 2024 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Ian R. Cook MD, a Santa Clarita resident and native, is pleased to announce the opening of a state-of-the-art Wound Care and Hyperbaric Center located in the heart of Santa Clarita. Founded with the belief that high-quality wound care is essential for the community.

Welcome to Santa Clarita Valley Wound Care and Hyperbarics

Ian Cook is excited to give back to his hometown and improve the quality of life of those living with non-healing wounds. His vision has become a reality through a strategic partnership with Wound Care Advantage \(WCA\), a renowned provider of specialized wound care services. The Wound Center aims to address the growing need for advanced wound care in the local community and enhance patient outcomes.

Our mission is to provide comprehensive, compassionate care to our community.”

SCV Founder & Medical Director, Ian R. Cook MD.

Wound care is essential for preventing infections and reducing amputation rates, which are significant concerns in the local community. In the Santa Clarita Valley, the obesity rate continues to grow, now affecting over 25% of the population. This increase in obesity leads to underlying health conditions such as diabetes and heart disease, which in turn raise the risk of developing non-healing wounds that could become serious infections. Without proper care and expertise of treating patients with underlying diseases, these conditions can result in amputation. Reducing amputation rates is a key goal for the wound center.

A study published in the Journal of Vascular Surgery indicates that up to 80% of all amputations are preceded by a chronic wound, highlighting the urgent need for effective wound care management. By implementing evidence-based treatments, promoting early intervention, and providing ongoing support, Santa Clarita Wound Care and Hyperbarics aims to significantly decrease amputation rates and improve patient outcomes.

"Our mission is to provide comprehensive, compassionate care to our community. By offering these specialized wound care services, we can improve the quality of life for patients suffering from chronic wounds and reduce the incidence of amputations. Our dedicated team of specialists, in collaboration with WCA, will provide the highest standard of care to help our patients heal and thrive." Explains founder & Medical Director, Ian R. Cook MD.

To bring this vision to life, Santa Clarita Valley Wound Care and Hyperbarics has teamed up with WCA, known for their wound care support services. Through this partnership, the center will be equipped with the advanced knowledge and resources provided by WCA, ensuring the delivery of sustainable and comprehensive wound care services tailored to meet the unique needs of each patient.

Mike Comer, CEO and Founder of Wound Care Advantage, expressed his enthusiasm for the partnership and the opportunity to bring advanced wound care services to the Santa Clarita Valley community through the first Innovation Center. "We're thrilled to collaborate with Dr. Cook at Santa Clarita Wound Care and Hyperbarics in establishing wound care in an area that has a growing need and the first center to meet our Innovation criteria. Our shared commitment to excellence and patient-centered care will ensure that patients in Santa Clarita Valley will receive the highest level of wound care expertise close to home. Together, we can make a significant impact on reducing amputations and enhancing the quality of life for patients with chronic wounds."

This Wound Center is the first of its kind Innovation Center, built from the ground up with the combined 40+ years of wound care experience between Dr. Cook and WCA. The Innovation Center's mission is to shape the future of the wound care industry by establishing new standards of patient care, rather than following the status quo. This will be achieved by leveraging cutting-edge technologies, implementing evidence-based practices, conducting research to discover new healing methods, utilizing the most advanced treatment options, and redefining the revenue cycle process. The center is staffed with a team of highly skilled specialists who treat all chronic, non-healing wounds, with specialized care for traumatic wounds, diabetic wounds, post-Mohs procedure wounds, and more.

Santa Clarita Valley Wound Care and Hyperbarics is now open and ready to serve the community. Patients seeking specialized wound care can schedule appointments by calling (661) 425-5000, emailing us at info@scvwoundcare.com or visiting scvwoundcare.com.

About Santa Clarita Wound Care and Hyperbarics

At Santa Clarita Valley Wound Care and Hyperbarics, we utilize advanced procedures as well as hyperbaric oxygen therapy to focus on healing wounds that the body is struggling to heal on its own. With proper intervention and treatment, we can bring healing, oftentimes within eight weeks.
