The film's executive producer, Ice-T, brings decades of cultural influence to the project, using his platform to spotlight critical social issues. Known for his pioneering contributions to hip-hop and acting, Ice-T continues to champion social causes, advocating for communities in need of systemic change. Terry C. Carney, Sr., founder of Platinum City Golden West Entertainment,

Put the Guns Down: A World Epidemic

draws on his personal experiences and extensive community work to create films that demand change. Together, Ice-T and Carney bring a shared commitment to addressing the often-overlooked issues of mental health and gun violence in America.

Put the Guns Down: A World Epidemic has already garnered international acclaim for its powerful, unfiltered storytelling. The documentary presents deeply moving testimonies from survivors, family members, and advocates, weaving a compelling narrative that challenges viewers to look beyond statistics and understand the human cost of gun violence. The film doesn't stop at exposing the issue; it calls for action, aiming to inspire solutions that will address the root causes and catalyze healing within affected communities.

"We wanted to make a film that goes beyond awareness to inspire real change," said Carney. "By bringing these stories to light, we're building a platform for understanding and, hopefully, for progress." Ice-T adds, "This documentary is about community, about empathy. Gun violence isn't just one community's problem – it's everyone's problem."

For out-of-town guests, discounted accommodations are available at the JW Marriott Hotel, conveniently located near the venue. The room package, starting at $279 per night, includes a $40 daily destination fee, which covers a range of amenities: a $40 room credit toward food and beverages at any hotel outlet or for in-room dining, enhanced in-room WiFi, access to a daily morning fitness class, complimentary admission to the GRAMMY Museum, a small popcorn at Regal Cinemas, and free bowling at Lucky Strike. To book, contact the hotel at (877) 622-3056 or visit <https://book.passkey.com/go/CulverCityFilmFestivalDec2024>.

The Culver City Film Festival, running from December 8 through December 16, celebrates impactful storytelling, making Put the Guns Down: A World Epidemic a fitting centerpiece. As audiences come together to engage with this crucial subject, the screening will serve as both a film event and a rallying call for change.
