This new option provides a unique opportunity for individuals and corporations to make a lasting impact and help us continue our success in educating teens on safe driving practices.”

*William M. Piecuch, Jr.
Founder and President*

As an all-volunteer organization, AUADD relies on donations to fund their programs and initiatives. With the addition of real estate donations, they hope to further their reach and impact in promoting safe driving practices among teens. This new option allows individuals and corporations to make a tangible contribution to the cause and support AUADD's mission.

"We are thrilled to announce that AUADD is now able to accept real estate donations as a way to support our efforts in promoting highway safety," said William M. Piecuch, Jr. Founder and President of AUADD. "This new option provides a unique opportunity for individuals and corporations to make a lasting impact and help us continue our success in educating teens on safe driving practices."

AUADD's dedication to promoting highway safety has been recognized by numerous organizations and government agencies. Their programs have been proven to reduce the number of highway deaths involving teen drivers, making a significant impact on the safety of our roads. With the addition of real estate donations, AUADD hopes to continue their success and reach even more teens with their life-saving message.
