Honouring the Past and Planning the Future

Through conservation works on its spa building, Sofitel Singapore Sentosa Resort & Spa continues to implement initiatives that preserve the island's culture and local heritage. The spa, once an army barrack, was one of many buildings constructed by the British military between the 1880's-1930's. Over time the spa has undergone restorations to protect the historical building while transforming it into a popular wellness retreat.

Sofitel Singapore Sentosa Resort & Spa also recognises the importance of an equitable working environment for employees and is committed to fostering an environment and culture that is diverse, inclusive, and free of bias and stereotypes.

Based on performance metrics and internal and external audits, Sofitel Singapore Sentosa Resort & Spa will continue to foster the collective involvement of its guests, partners, staff and the community on its sustainability journey for long-term viability.
