The increase in the influence of grilled food across the world and growth in adoption of grilled food among youth are majorly driving the BBQ charcoal industry. People are increasingly getting health conscious due to which consumers are preferring smoked or grilled food over fried food. The demand for BBQ charcoal is showing a significant increase due to its benefits such as grilled food is smoky flavored and healthy. Moreover, BBQ charcoal grills provide more heat and are portable. In addition, growth in cookout trends, such as cooking grilled food in the backyard, is increasing among the youth across the world. QSR magazine has reported that more than 90% of Americans like BBQ food, which is creating growth opportunity for BBQ charcoal market in North America. However, barbecue and grilling are very popular around the world, so the entry of local players into the production of barbecue charcoal products continues to increase.

Local players start producing charcoal, which negatively impacts prices. In addition, the number of local players in the market is increasing, and price competition is intensifying. To compete in the market, local players start selling their products at lower prices. This is one of the major factors creating challenges in the global barbecue charcoal market.

Increase in penetration of quick service restaurant chains, hotels, fast casual restaurants, cloud kitchens, and cafes has led to surge in the processed meat market in North America and Europe, which, in turn, fuels the BBQ charcoal market growth. Ready-to-eat foods are precooked foods that have a long shelf life and are consumed on the go. In addition, these dishes are growing in popularity due to the convenience they offer, as they save time and require no additional heating before consumption and influence consumer eating habits. The increasing demand for ready-to-eat foods is driving the sales of charcoal, which is used in ready-to-eat foods and enhances the flavour of the prepared foods. Growing preference for such meals is driving the growth during the BBQ Charcoal Market Forecast.
