This year, he captivated audiences with his performances in various high-profile projects. On the big screen, Wasescha shared scenes with Dustin Hoffman in a yet-to-be-titled film, earning praise for his compelling on-screen presence. He also appeared in the horror thriller "Lady Bug," showcasing his versatility as an actor. On television, Wasescha shone in popular series such as "Davide Does America" and "Hollywood Adjacent."

Reflecting on his achievements, Wasescha expressed gratitude and enthusiasm for the opportunities ahead. "The outlook for next year is incredibly exciting," he shared. "I'm currently in the final casting rounds for a movie that will film in Budapest and Paris, as well as another project in Colombia."

"I am deeply grateful to my family, friends, fans, and supporters for standing by me throughout this amazing journey in 2024. Your encouragement and belief in me have been my greatest motivation, and none of this would be possible without you. Thank you for being an incredible part of my story," Wasescha concludes.

Matteo Wasescha discovered his love for acting at four, inspired by Charlie Chaplin's films. His first stage role came during a family trip to the Dominican Republic, where he played Simba in a local production of "The Lion King." After completing his education and military service in Switzerland, he pursued acting at the Los Angeles Acting Conservatory. At 15, while still in Switzerland, Wasescha auditioned for the IPOP Talent Contest in Los Angeles, winning three awards and attracting interest from major agencies.

Fluent in five languages, Wasescha continues to showcase his talent across diverse roles, with a growing list of film and TV credits that highlight his dedication and versatility.

Matteo Wasescha is available for interviews.
