

Cat Chitose Introduces Organic 0-Sugar Freshly Stewed Silver Ear for a Healthier Lifestyle

LONGZHOU, GUANGXI, CHINA, January 23, 2025 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Founded in 2018, Cat Chitose focuses on integrating cultivation, research, advanced processing, and sales of silver ear (Tremella) products. The company is dedicated to delivering organic products that align with the global demand for healthy and natural food options, emphasizing quality, sustainability, and innovation.

The Organic 0-Sugar Freshly Stewed Silver Ear: A Game-Changer in Healthy Foods

At the forefront of its product range is the Organic 0-Sugar Freshly Stewed Silver Ear. This distinctive product combines tradition and technology, offering a convenient and nutritious option for health-conscious consumers. With more than 30% dietary fiber content, it helps maintain gut health and supports overall well-being. The hydration benefits of silver ear polysaccharides make it an ideal choice for individuals with busy schedules, helping to replenish moisture lost during daily activities.

Crafted from the simplest ingredients—organic silver ear, red date juice, goji berry juice, erythritol, and stevia—this product contains no preservatives, artificial colors, or flavors. The carefully selected components ensure a natural, light sweetness and smooth texture that delights the palate without compromising on health.

From Farm to Table: A Fully Integrated Production Process

Cat Chitose operates a fully integrated supply chain to ensure quality and sustainability at every step. The company's cultivation base in Guangxi, China, spans over 110 million square meters, situated within a pristine natural reserve. This location offers optimal conditions for growing premium silver ear, with mountain spring water providing the necessary nutrients for cultivation.

The production process employs advanced automation and precision technologies. Environmental factors such as temperature, light, and humidity are meticulously controlled to ensure each fungus matures with superior quality. The company limits each cultivation unit to produce only three fungi per culture block, ensuring optimal nutrition absorption and robust growth.

Distinctive Craftsmanship and Technology for Superior Quality

Cat Chitose employs cutting-edge methods to preserve the freshness and nutritional value of its products. Its special “one-hour freshness-locking” process ensures that freshly harvested silver ear is processed within an hour, preserving its natural texture and taste. Additionally, the 123°C high-temperature sterilization technique eliminates harmful microorganisms while maintaining the product’s original flavor and consistency.

These methods ensure that the Organic 0-Sugar Freshly Stewed Silver Ear remains free from preservatives, offering an impressive shelf life of 18 months. This achievement exemplifies the company’s dedication to merging traditional craftsmanship with modern technology.

Exceptional Taste and Convenience

The Organic 0-Sugar Freshly Stewed Silver Ear delivers a luxurious culinary experience with every bite. Its soft, jelly-like texture and mild sweetness make it an indulgent yet guilt-free treat. Whether enjoyed as a mid-day snack, a post-workout refreshment, or an evening dessert, the product meets the needs of diverse lifestyles.

Its ready-to-eat format makes it an ideal choice for busy individuals. Opening a bottle reveals a perfectly stewed serving, eliminating the need for time-consuming preparation. This convenience, combined with its natural ingredients, ensures that consumers can enjoy high-quality nutrition without compromise.
