What are the Principal Drivers of Growth in the Corifact Market?

The corifact market's progression is primed significantly by the increasing prevalence of bleeding disorders. These disorders which hinder the blood's clotting ability lead to excessive or prolonged bleeding. Progress in diagnosis, heightened awareness, advancements in genetic testing, lifestyle adjustments, and the existence of underlying conditions have all contributed to the surge in bleeding disorders. Corifact, specifically designed to treat bleeding disorders caused by a deficiency in factor XIII, replaces the lacking clotting factor. This process helps form stable blood clots and reduces excessive bleeding.
