This remarkable achievement was made possible by the dedication of dozens of volunteers who worked tirelessly to gather signatures across the district. Their commitment and enthusiasm reflect the broad coalition of support Morano has built among Staten Islanders. In addition to demonstrating the Morano campaign’s ability to get things done, this also gives Frank Morano and his “Staten Island Patriotism” Party the coveted first spot on the ballot.

Frank Morano’s campaign is focused on tackling the issues that matter most to Staten Islanders, including public safety, traffic and transportation, property taxes, and government transparency.

His swift and successful petition drive underscores the campaign's strength, organization, and deep connection with the community.

"Our team worked tirelessly, and the people responded in overwhelming fashion," said Frank Rapacciuolo, Morano's campaign manager. "This is just the beginning. With this kind of momentum, we're ready to take this campaign all the way to victory in November."
