Dwayne's journey is one of extraordinary resilience and transformation. As a single mother, she raised him on a council estate. When his mother was incarcerated, he endured foster care, children's homes, and by age thirteen was entangled in crime, violence, and addiction. Over the next seventeen years, he found himself in and out of prison, surviving multiple near-fatal stabblings and shootings. Despite these hardships, he turned his life around in a truly remarkable way, becoming a beacon of hope and transformation for others.

“Becoming part of the International Order of Fantastic Professionals is a tremendous honor. This organization represents the highest level of excellence, impact, and transformation, and I am truly humbled to stand among such distinguished professionals,” Dwayne said. “I look forward to contributing my experiences and insights to this incredible community and continuing to empower others on their journey to success.”

Through his powerful storytelling, strategic mentorship, and hands-on leadership, Dwayne transforms individuals and revolutionizes organizations, fostering meaningful and lasting change.

“Dwayne Nathan Jack’s story is one of profound resilience, transformation, and empowerment; his dedication to unlocking human potential and creating meaningful change aligns perfectly with the mission of IOFP. We are honored to welcome him into our esteemed network and eagerly anticipate the inspiration and leadership he will bring to our community,” said Dr. Allen Lycka, president and CEO of the International Order of Fantastic Professionals.
