

Outdoor Edge's New Vantex Hunting Knives Built To Go the Distance

DENVER, TX, UNITED STATES, March 21, 2025 /EINPresswire.com/ -- The new Outdoor Edge Vantex line of hunting knives has been designed for serious hunters who require serious knives and prefer a traditional fixed-blade design that will last a lifetime. These premium knives are built to go the distance, with full-tang, titanium-coated, high-carbon steel blades designed to hold their edge longer, allowing you to focus on the task at hand. Their ergonomic, no-slip handles provide an effortless grip. The new Vantex knives provide the perfect balance of performance, comfort, and control in every cut.

The 3.5" Vantex Drop-Point knife stands out, making it an ideal companion for any hunting expedition. The drop-point blade strikes the perfect balance between compactness and cutting power. Weighing only 3.2 ounces, this knife feels lightweight yet sturdy in hand. With the ABS/TPE/polypropylene sheath, it weighs a bit more- 4.8 ounces- but ensures you have a reliable tool ready when needed.

On the other hand, the 5.0" Vantex Boning knife is slightly longer and features a mid-flex blade that excels in precision tasks like boning game meat. At only 2.4 ounces without the sheath – and just 4 ounces with it – it's comfortable to wield for extended periods when processing your harvest or preparing meals outdoors. The Boning and Drop-Point knives are affordably priced at $24.99 each, delivering exceptional value for serious hunters seeking reliability and performance.

The new Vantex Hunting Knife set is a game-changer for serious hunters. Its modular design ensures you have the right tools without the excess weight. Each knife serves a distinct purpose, making field dressing and processing effortless. The Drop-Point and Boning knives are crafted for precision, while the Caping knife allows for intricate work. Weighing 16.8 oz, this set won't let you down during the hunt. The included carbide/ceramic sharpener ensures you are always ready to maintain that razor-sharp edge when it matters most. Everything fits neatly into the nylon roll pack, ensuring organization and easy access.

Designed with functionality in mind, the Vantex Hunting Knife Set meets all your big-game needs efficiently and effectively, all for $79.99. It's not just about having tools – it's about having the right tools at your fingertips.
