BOCA RATON, FL, UNITED STATES,
March 27, 2025 /EINPresswire.com/ --
Entrex (OTC: RGLG) is pleased to announce that EPPCo, a Tampa-based EV charging solutions provider, has been selected as a founding member of the TAMPAtwenty—a regional initiative of the Florida Private Company Index (www.PrivateCompanyIndex.com).

The Florida Private Company Index enables us to track revenue—the top-line performance—of private companies across Florida and the nation.”

Stephen H. Watkins

“We’re honored to be accepted as a founding member of the TAMPAtwenty,” said Fred Knight, President of EPPCo. “We look forward to connecting with fellow members and participating in the confidential monthly revenue reporting that forms the foundation of the published Index. Being able to benchmark our performance against regional and national peers will offer valuable insight into our own operations, while also helping the broader community and media understand the economic momentum of the region.”

Thomas Harblin, Partner at the Florida Private Company Index, added: “Our earlier work with the Dow Index team helped reinforce the significance of indexes in guiding financial markets and investor sentiment. The FPCI brings similar clarity to the private sector, allowing investors to evaluate performance through the lens of real, top-line company data.”

Stephen H. Watkins, CEO of Entrex, noted: “The Florida Private Company Index enables us to track revenue—the top-line performance—of private companies across Florida and the nation. While this begins as a regional benchmarking initiative, we expect it to evolve into a private, diversified fixed-income fund based on economic performance. Ultimately, our vision is to see it mature into a publicly tradable security—similar to the NASDAQ Indexes—that reflects the real-time economic contributions of private businesses.”
