The event also featured the popular Duck Drop contest, with over 600 rubber ducks plunging from 60 feet above the green. Palm Beach County resident Scott Boilen won $2,500 when his duck landed closest to the hole. Boilen generously donated the prize back to BWCF.

Now in its 13th year, this event was renamed in honor of the late BWCF founder, Arthur Adler, who helped establish and grow the event into one of South Florida's premiere charity golf tournaments. "Arthur Adler was passionate about bringing people together to help children in need," said Pamela Weinroth, Executive Director of Boca West Children's Foundation. "We're proud to honor his legacy by continuing to unite the community and provide essential resources to the most vulnerable youth in Palm Beach County."
